HUNTING FOR A NATIONAL PARK

The following article is taken from The Outlook. It is about a prois the northwest corner of one of way. the sites under consideration-

Can we find a great National Park in the East? Secretary Hubert Work asks this question, and then appoints a committee of five to answer it. The inevitable direction of a ern Appalachian Mountains.

The days of romance and adventure have not yet passed forever, and so, while business grinds and politics boils, the Committee goes South to begin an exploration that will surely mean, before many years, a big National Park in a new area containing scenery both august and intimate, flora both rare and glorious, and animals of all descriptions which ever lived in the original thirteen States.

The Southern Appalachian Mountains have been known but not recognized by the American people. Much misinformation has been circulated. by nobody in particular, about this charming country which extends from Pennsylvania to Georgia.

The Committee started by asking itself many questions. Can we find adequate scenery? Is there an area National in size (say 1,000 square miles) ? Will it, be wild?

The inhabitants of that region are asking:

How large is a park? What will you do with us? Will we have to move? What will Congress pay?

The Committee can see, on the start, that a selection will be made from four or five parts of the Southern Appalachians, which naturally separate themselves into competing aresa. It is too early even to mention them, but already the people of North and South Carolina, Tennessee, and Georgia are vigorously singing the praise of their parts of the great mountain range and are offering every assistance and entertainment to the Committee. The scenic areas of Kentucky, West Virginia, and Virginia also await investigation.

The Appalachian Mountains contain forty eight mountain peaks over 6,000 feet above sea level and sixtythree over 6,000 feet. It must be remembered that the plain from which these peaks start is only about 1,000 feet above sea-level, so the onlooker gets the same impression as he does when viewing the peaks of the Rocky Mountain, which rise from a much higher plain. They contain the most extensive hardwood forest remaining in North America, with the greatest variety of trees, shrubs, and flowers known to our naturalists.

National Parks, so far, have been created almost entirely out of the unoccupied public land by a simple act of Congress.

The reason there has been no lachian Mountains is that all the land is privately owned. And the valleys have been occupied since before Washington was President by settlers who gradually worked into this area from the original coast colonies. So the principal question today (after the one about the general merit of the scenery, which is easily for park purposes? Might a campaign the land be conducted in the Southern cities most directly to be bene fited by tourist travel? A National Park in the Appa lachians will mean a large amount of road building by somebody to reach the park and by the Government within the park.

If the scenic advantages of two sections are substantially the same, the road cost will be one of the determining factors.

Camping areas will be another competing element; but it is probable that every section can qualify reasonably, for, while the mountains are very rugged, approximating in places the best pinnacled parts of the Rockies, yet the camping possibilities of all areas seem fully sufficient for National Park purposes. It is not generally known that so many sharp peaks exist. Automobile roads can reach the summit of many of them, but others will remain forever the goal of climbers one peak we gaze at across a half-mile deep valley was according to one of our guides, about large enough for three or four "tol'able" sized men to stand

Very few rock are in sight. They are there, but are covered with shrubs and moss, so the general color effect is green, with only an occasional jutting cliff which has managed to shake off the tentacles of the traveling roots and the creeping vines.

An exception will have to be noted along the border line of Georgia and South Carolina, where several mountain-sides are bare rock, the most notable, "Whitesides" having a perpandicular bare wall of over 1,000 fest. We were much impressed with this noble mountain, and did not 'a gufy" when some of the party Terms: Cash thought the depth of the precipice

We are asked what we are finding so far to justify a National Park. The answer is:

First, majestic mountain scenery. Second, several big areas with parts usable as playgrounds for the masses, and parts as museum areas for the naturalist and the trail hiker who want to be alone with nature in its grandeur and infinite wealth of wondrous creations.

The whole Southern Appalachian $15. Range is an exhibition from May 1 to July 15 every year of the greatest flower show in the world. There are countless acres everywhere of laurel, azalea, arbutus, and rhododendrons. Unless seen, their glory is almost unbelievable.

The Committee appointed by Governor Morgan as a National Park Committee for West Virginia is composed of the following:

How Signs Of Old Age Creep Into Your System When The Iron In Your Blood Runs Low

For Want of Iron, You May Be Old At Thirty-Nervous, Irritable and All Run-Down-While at Fifty or Sixty, With Plenty of Iron in Your Blood, You May Be Young in Feeling and Brimming Over with Vim and Energy.

IRON IS THE RED BLOOD FOOD That Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restores Wasted Tissue and Aids in Giving Renewed Force and Power to the Body. Physicians Explain Why Administration of Simple Nuxated Iron Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Rundown People in Two Weeks' Time. Old age has already sunk its talons into thousands of men and women who ought still to be enjoying the springtime and summer of life simply because they have allowed worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and thereby destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain, You will find plenty of people at 40 who are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay while others at 50 are strong, active, alert and seemingly grow ing younger every year. One class withers and dies like leaves in autumn while the other by keeping up a strong power of resistance against disease may pass the three score and ten mark with surprising health, rength and vigor.
